Brilliant Reception Is Arranged For Goldsmith's Santa

For 12 years Santa Claus, who has always made his headquarters at Goldsmith & Sons Co., has ushered in his arrival with a tremendous parade for the pleasure of thousands of Memphis children, but having enlisted in the service of the United States he finds it impossible to carry out his usual program this year.

The parade which has been featured each year has cost many hundreds of dollars and this money will be put to better use by being distributed to the various war work funds and charities of the city.

No doubt the children have wondered who helped Santa prepare the wonderful gifts that were distributed each year through his agency and they will have an opportunity to be introduced to his helper Saturday when Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus will hold a brilliant reception from 10 until 4 o'clock on the fifth floor of the J. Goldsmith & Sons Co., where a picture of Fairyland is open to the little ones, and where they may whisper into the ear of either one or the other of their hosts their hopes and desires for the Christmas gifts.

Acting in conjunction with the government Santa Claus has made his arrival a month earlier than usual and earnestly requests the public to make purchases as early as possible as extra help will not be available in December and the public will suffer from the lack of attention, if it does not take heed of this warning.

All children attending the reception on Saturday will receive attractive souvenirs in order that they may remember with pleasure the Christmas of 1918, at Goldsmith & Sons Co.

BUSINESS AND SOCIAL.

INTERPRETATIVE PROGRAMS. The first concert in a course of 12 interpretative programs will be given in the Woman's building Saturday afternoon, Nov. 9, at 1 o'clock, by Miss Susie De Shazo, concert pianist.

For information in regard to this educational series of programs, apply to the Boling-Musser School of Music, telephone Main 1814-J.

GROSVENOR BURNED ON NECK BY GIANT CRACKER

Department of Justice officials are in possession of what is left of the powerful 2½-inch cannon cracker which was thrown from a window in the Cotton Exchange building Thursday afternoon and which exploded close to Charles N. Grosvenor, a prominent real estate dealer, 67 years old, 550 Vance avenue.

Had the explosive fallen closer to the aged man the concussion would have probably caused death, police believe. Grosvenor is confined to his home from the severe shock. The cracker was evidently thrown by some one trying to celebrate the peace rumor. W. E. McElveen, in charge of the department of justice, has discovered nothing definite about the "bomb."

Grosvenor was crossing Madison avenue when he was hit. His injuries were unmarked but signs of the terrific concussion were visible on his neck. The noise from the explosion created a near-panic.

Sale of "Gage" and "Fisk" Hats

At Less Than Wholesale Cost
That's the Good News Tomorrow
Every Woman Knows
"Gage" and "Fisk" Hats

They possess lines of smartness and individuality that emphasize their style-importance at first glance.

TAILORED HATS that are characterized by a chic simplicity—their trim plain lines accentuated in distinctive ways for which these makers are so well known.

TRIMMED HATS that are created into such artistic gracefulness as only these famous houses can produce—that possess a distinctive individuality in the inimitable "Gage" and "Fisk" way.

In other words, they possess individual charm and cleverness that claim instant recognition by fashionable dressers all over the country.

This unexpected and most unusual opportunity in high-grade millinery is due to several very serious obstacles in the path of industry (unseasonable weather and the ravaging "Spanish flu" epidemic), which have greatly retarded business and naturally created a congestion. The only speedy method of relief was substantial reductions in price. We were alert to the conditions—a fact which is most emphatically demonstrated by this truly wonderful style-gathering from two of America's foremost millinery designers, recognized by fashionable dressers from coast to coast as authentic style-creators. The liberal concessions induced us to buy very freely—realizing that the women of Memphis and vicinity would be quick to grasp a like opportunity.
